AID FOR IDLE TO BE FRAMED BY COMMITTEE

Opposing Interests Agree to Lay Aside Controversies For The Present

REPORT NOW READY

Wage Issue Still Stands as Chief Stumbling Block to Amicable Agreement.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The manufacturing interests in the employment conference having agreed, under pressure, to drop all controversial matters, such as wages for the time being, Secretary Hoover was enabled yesterday afternoon to announce that the conference will be reconvened Friday to receive recommendations for emergency relief.

These will be presented, Mr. Hoover said, in the form of a consolidated report of the various subcommittees prepared by the committee on organization, or steering committee, of which Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, formerly of the United States Shipping Board is chairman.

To this committee the reports of all other committees will be submitted not later than tomorrow. It then will proceed to work them into one consistent document, after which the members of the several committees will be asked to look over and approve such parts as each may be interested in.

By this process it is to be expected that a document will be produced against which neither labor nor capital will raise objection, but with which neither side will be thoroughly satisfied. It is, therefore, to be expected that the meeting will be nothing more than one of ratification, with the thing ratified made up chiefly of the "suggestions" collected in the agenda prepared for the committee by the economic council.

This will end the first or emergency phase of the conference, which then will proceed to take up measures looking toward permanent relief and the establishment of methods or systems by which recurring periods of severe depression may be avoided.

It also will end, so the manufacturers have been assured, the efforts to confine them to non-controversial matters. Indeed, there is reason for believing that the agreement to avoid all things that might make it difficult for the conference to agree without debate was secured on assurance that all attempts to keep the lid on will end with the emergency measures out of the way.

President Harding is credited with securing this temporary truce. It was not agreed to until early yesterday morning, when one prominent steel manufacturer, who had been at the White House, informed his fellows that the Administration would insist on an agreement on temporary measures and that it would view with displeasure a repetition of disputes such as marked Monday's meeting of the committee on manufactures.

This committee, having settled on its emergency report by accepting the ideas of Samuel Gompers, met today in what was termed an "unofficial session" to consider permanent measures. It met early and stayed late, and while it was not as stormy as the meeting of Monday there was real lack of harmony.

The wage question was the bone of contention, the steel men on the committe insisting that in any permanent settlement wages would have to come down. William M. Butler, of Boston, also took this position, while railroad wages and rates were touched upon by many.

SOME SERVICE

Masons Given Speedy Trip to Clarendon by W.-Va. Line Saturday

Well, when it comes to service the Washington-Virginia Railway Co., is "there," in the opinion of members of Andrew Jackson Lodge of Masons. The occasion for the statement was the splendid service given in great haste last Saturday night by the company. A large delegation of members of the lodge planned a visit to Clarendon Lodge. Automobiles were to be provided by the brethren having machines. This they did. However, the crowd was so great that at least thirty members were left standing at King and Washington streets and had given up in despair at being able to attend the meeting. Someone suggested getting in touch with the Washington-Virginia line. The suggestion was carried out and at 7:15 o'clock P. E. Clift division superintendent was notified. He arranged for a car and crew from Four Mile Run and in post haste the car was sent here the Masons got aboard and at exactly eight minutes after 8 o'clock the visitors were in Clarendon and did not miss any part of the meeting.

JURY FREES MEN HELD FOR ATTACK

Charge Was Made by Mrs. Joyce Samples of Washington

OUT FIFTEEN MINUTES

Alleged Attack Occurred April 16, 1921 Near Arlington National Cemetery.

After being out only about fifteen minutes a jury in the United States Court for the Eastern district of Virginia, Judge D. Lawrence Groner, presiding, returned a verdict of not guilty in the cases of two Washington men named William J. Sullivan and Harry J. McDonald, charged with an alleged attempt to attack Mrs. Joyce Samples of Washington.

The final arguments were completed shortly before noon. When court opened this morning about 10.30 o'clock Judge Groner announced that he had overruled the motion of Attorney Howard W. Smith, representing the defendants, that the federal court was without jurisdiction in the premises.

Following this announcement arguments were made by the attorneys and the case submitted to the jury.

The alleged attack occurred April 16, 1921 while the members of the party were in an automobile and was alleged that the act was committed while the machine was near the Arlington National Cemetery, over which road the government has jurisdiction.

The jury was composed of James Callan, foreman; George H. Robinson, F. F. Marbury, H. A. Stewart, Thomas E. Dyson, William Desmond, Walter C. Roberts, J. B. Woody, John Seman, Robert Corr, A. L. Garnett, Randolph Burruss.

Attorney Howard W. Smith represented the defendants and the government's side of the case was conducted by U. S. District attorney Paul W. Kear and Assistant U. S. District Attorney Cullum Jones.

TROOPER THROWN AT FAIRFAX FAIR

Private T. F. Draird of Troop 1. Third Cavalry, stationed at Fort Myer, Va., fell from his horse at the Fairfax County fair yesterday afternoon while taking hurdle exercise and was injured about the head. He received treatment at the post hospital at Fort Myer and was able to be out today. Many Alexandrians attending the fair witnessed the accident and thought Draird was seriously injured.

MARINES READY

Quantico Hosts Complete 18-Mile Hike And Camp at Lee's Old Headquarters

Field Headquarters, Marine Corps, Expeditionary Force, Wilderness Run Tavern, Sept. 29.—An 18 mile march from Fredericksburg in the order of an advanced brigade of an attacking division was made by the Marine Corps expedition today, arriving at the old headquarters of General Lee's Confederate Army of Northern Virginia during the battle of Chancellorsville before 3 p. m. Camp was made immediately and all preparations made for the three day sham battle, which begins tomorrow.

Problems which General Lee for the Confederate Army and General Hooker for the Union Army of the Potomac had to work out from May 1 to 4 of 1863 in the battle of Chancellorsville will be worked out by Commanding General Butler and his staff, many of whom saw service with the Second and other divisions in France.

Geenral Butler marched 26 miles, nearly 16 of which was with full pack. When he found stragglers along the road complaining of the heat and dust and sore feet he went to the extreme rear, collected the stragglers himself, formed a platoon of them, took a pack on his own back and filled in the rear file. It was the first pack he ever carried, but his example even emptied the ambulances.

The General's father, Representative Butler, of Pennsylvania, found him at 4 o'clock eating slum from a mess kit with his platoon. He brought it into camp before seven o'clock and was singing as it came.

Fairfax Fair a Success

Merchants Well Pleased With Their Trip

The Alexandria merchants who yesterday afternoon attended the Fairfax county fair returned home about 6 o'clock last night. All report the fair as being a big success. The various exhibits were greatly enjoyed by the Alexandrians who say the fair is one of the biggest and best ever given in that county. The visiting merchants were well pleased with their trip.

STATE NEWS

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 27.—The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Grand Camp, Confederate Veterans, Department of Virginia, which assembles here October 18, for a three days' session, is expected to be the most largely attended gathering of that organization in recent years, due principally to the fact that, on the second day of the convention Charles Keck's splendid bronze statue of Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, given to Charlottesville by Paul Goodloe McIntire, will be unveiled with ceremonies. Large delegations are expected from the 130 camps in the Virginia Department.

Twice before in its history has the Grand Camp met in this old college town. The first session here was in 1895, when William A. Smoot, now deceased, was elected Grand Commander. Thirteen years later, in 1908, the veterans returned for their 21st annual session. S. S. Brooks, now deceased, was chosen Grand Commander at that session.

Richmond—The order has gone fourth that beginning next Sunday, between the hours of 9:30 and 4 in the afternoon, the street cars of the city are to be operated by one man who will collect the fares, and make change and open and close the doors and all the work. The men are today considering the matter and there may b trouble the city having taken up teh subject of making inquiries into the right of the company to do this.

Saluda—Congressman H. D. Flood addressed a large crowd of the militant Democracy, of Middlesex, here today, scoring the present attitude of Col. Henry W. Anderson, toward the Virginia constitution, as compared with the Republican nominee's attitude for years after that document's adoption.

Congressman Flood said that it was only a few years ago that Col. Anderson had occasion to champion the very constitution which he now disapproves, making a speech concerning that instrument. Touching educational matters, Mr. Flood revealed some of the errors into which the Republicans, in their effort to wrest control of Virginia from the Democrats, have fallen and which they are uttering on the stump.

Richmond—Motor enthusiasts of the state will have the opportunity to witness the greatest dirt track drivers in the country in action in the Virginia State Fair Autoraces next saturday, Oct. 1, with the greatest array of professional race drivers everassembledon one track in the East ready to line up on the tape and battle for the $5,000 cash purse and track honors, thrills and sensations rivaled with daredevil driving, promises to keep the spectators on their toes every minute of the afternoon.

Williamsburg—The prelegal course, which was inaugurated at William and Mary in 1919, has been materially strengthened by the addition to the faculty of Oscar L. Shewmake, as professor of government and citizenship. Mr. Shewmake is a distinguished alumnus of William and Mary.

Richmond—The American Legion Convention Committee at Kansas City has just announced that the Eastern and Central Passenger Associations which comprise all the large trunk lines of the East have granted the one cent mile rate to the American Legion National Convention, Oct. 31, Nov 1, and 2, 1921.

COL. ANDERSON'S BLACKSTONE, VA. SPEECH QUOTED

Mayor Makes Statement Regarding Expression of Republician Candidate

SIGNED STATEMENT

In corroberation of the statement made by Judge George J. Hundley of Farmville, and denied by Col. Henry W. Anderson, Republican aspirant for governor charging that Col. Anderson in a recent speech at Farmville, publically stated that he felt ashamed of that star in the American flag which represented the Commonwealth of Virginia, W. R. Jones, Mayor of Blackstone, Va., today voluntarily made the following signed declaration: Col. Henry W. Anderson spoke in moving picture theatre at Blackstone on the afternoon previous to the speech in Farmville, referred in Judge George J. Hundleys letter to Hon. N. Brenaman, secretary of the Democratic committee on September 9th 1921. Col. Anderson argued before that audience which was entirely white the political freedom of the people of Virginia during his speech he stated that he had the honor to represent the American people in Europe during the world war and that when he was in the Balkans trying to help and uplift those miserable people he carried on the front of his automobile The American flag and every time he stopped his automobile women and children would come up to kiss the flag and that it made his heart ache when they did this because he felt that he was practicing a fraud upon them to allow them to kiss a flag having upon it a star representing the Commonwealth of Virginia because I felt ashamed of the fact that the people of that benighted country had more political freedom than the people of his own State. This statement, or a statement substantially the same, can be secured from a number of citizens at Blackstone who attended the meeting. Signed W. R. Jones, Mayor of Blackstone. Dated September 28, 1921.

Colonel Anderson is said to have expressed himself in terms similar to those set forth in the statement of Mayor Jones in addresses delivered by him in other sections of the State as will be set forth in additional testimony.

ANOTHER FAST GAME

Dreadnaughts Vs. Shamrocks, Star Amateur Team of Washington

For the second time this season the Dreadnaughts will line up against the Shamrocks, one of the best amateur teams that ever played in this city on Sunday. On their first visit to this city several weeks ago they held the Dreadnaughts to a 2 to 1 score in 11 innings, when Walter Bealle, pitching for Shamrocks, struck out 20 Dreadnaught batters.

The fans have asked for this game, and we hope that it will be largely attended. There will be a large crowd from Washington down to see this game, so Alexandria fans come and get your seats early. This will probably be the last game of the season, but if the weather continues to hold good, our last game of the season will be with the Washington Elks, champions of Washington. The game begins at 3:00 o'clock at the Dreadnaughts Park. Umpires, Jancke and Long, Washington's best will officiate.

STENOGRAPHIC SCHOOL TO OPEN

The Virginia Stenographic Night School, of which Miss Anna Summers is principal and Miss Marie K. Doherty is assistant, will open Monday, Oct. 3. Individual instruction and speed dictation are specialized. Already there has been a large enrollment. This school has been in operation here for several years and is now located at the northeast corner of Royal and Prince streets.

Bible Thought for Today

GOD WILL GUIDE THEE:—Be ye not as the horse, or the mule, which have no understanding: whose mouth must be held in with a bit and bridle. I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go.—

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

Washington, Sept. 29.—Events are so shaping themselves in the United States Senate, that the Democratic minority with a little skillful maneuvering has reached a position from which it expects to severely jolt the plans of the administration in handling the treaties, taxation and other important legislation promised the people during the election campaign.

Republican leaders gave the treaties of peace right of way. They were secure in the belief that opposition from Democrats could not assume serious proportione. Democratic members however, under the leadership of Carter Glass, of Virginia, and a few others has been so enlivened that the treaties are to be sidetracked, that the Republican majority might organize a steam roller.

Still flushed with confidence the majority brought up the tax bill. It was expected to have easy sailing so far as any real opposition from the minority was concerned. Today Republican leaders got another severe jolt, when it developed that the organization of Senators from the farm states, proposed to throw a whole handfull of monkey-wrenches into the machinery being engineered by Boise Penrose. They are not satisfied with the tax bill as it stands and Republicans and Democrats in the group have united to oppose it. With the aid of the other Democrats they may cause the Finance Committee sleepless nights.

In this situation the minority is taking on new life. There will be a caucus tomorrow and it will probably plan for lively doing and the discomfiture of the majority.

Harding Writes Alexandrian

President Harding gave an interesting interpretation of the duties of a citizen today in reply to a letter from Charles S. Stoler, chairman of the publicity committee of the Republican Club of Alexandria.

Mr. Stoler asked the President to give an expression on what he thought was the first duty of a citizen. Here is what he wrote to Mr. Stoler:

"My Dear Mr. Stoler:

It seems to me you have yourself suggested one of the most important duties of every citizen. You observe in the last election for Governor of Virginia only 89,000 votes were cast, while in 1920 the total, with the women voting, rose to 231,000, while there was a total possible qualified vote of about 900,000.

"Quite regardless of the effect on the fortunes of particular political parties, I am impressed that there is need particularly for an appeal to voters to perform their duty at the ballot box on election day. If the result of the full vote in Virginia or any other state should prove disastrous to the party of which you or a chance to be a member, we would at least know that we have heard the voice of the people, and would be more ready to acquiesce in their decision.

"There is no more important duty for the citizen than this of voting on the one day in the year when his vote means something.

"If you can succeed in securing in Virginia this fall the largest vote that the state ever cast, I will personally feel that you have accomplished a notable civic advantage quite regardless of the political result.

"I think that it will not be improper for me to add that I shall have, like yourself, no fear of the political result, if an expression can be secured.'

Wets and Drys in Training

The wets and drys in Congress and on the outside are doing a lot of tactical maneuvering on the beer bill and beer regulations which are tied up in the Treasury Department.

Pressure was brought by the drys all summer to have the Treasury hold up beer regulations because the Willis Campbell beer bill was going to pass promptly. It has not passed and now is sidetracked, but the drys are not asking that beer regulations be held up any longer. They feel that if they are issued and beer gets out, that the result will be stronger pressure on Congress for passage of the bill to prevent beer, thus breaking the strength of the fillibuster against it.

Wets seem to be in a somewhat similar state of mind. They are making very little demand for the regulations, and Secretary Mellon no knowing what to do, will probably be nothing.

K. C. OFFICERS

W. A. Devaughn Chosen Grand Knight

For the first time the local Knights of Columbus held their regular business meeting last night at their new club rooms at the corner of Cameron and St. Asaph Streets. An exceptionally large membership was present, and following the transaction of regular business, the following officers were elected to serve for the period of October 1st, 1921 to October 1, 1922: Grand knight, W. A. Devaughn; deputy grand knight, E. Ethelbert Downham; chancellor, Lawrence W. Corbett; recording secretary, Francis T. Quinn; financial secretary, Claude M. Lennon; treasurer, Sylvester A. Breen; warden, A. A. Lucas; advocate, Francis H. Fannon; outside guard, Alphonsus Lucas inside guard, Wm. Murphy; trustee, M. J. McFarland; chaplain, the Rev. Louis Smet.

WILL VOTE TUESDAY ON NEW FORM

Will Decide If They Want City Manager Plan

COUNCIL OF FIVE

If Adopted Council Will be Elected In June, 1922 and They Will Assume Office Sept. 1, 1922.

Voters of the city next Tuesday will decide whether or not they want a change in the form of city government. If they vote for a change the city manager plan form of government will become operative Sep. 1, 1922, although five councilmen at large will be elected by the people in the general election which will be held in June 1922.

The city council will have power to pass all city ordinances; to levy taxes; pass on all appropriations of city money, to provide what city officers are necessary, to conduct the city's affairs and to fix their salaries and to appoint a city manager. Neither the council nor city manager have the power to elect or appoint a commonwealth's attorney, treasurer, clerk of the court, city sergeant or commissioner of revenue as these officers are elected under the constitution of the state. The salary of the manager is fixed by the city council. The councilmen elected will receive compensation for their services and this is fixed by a commission composed of 5 resident taxpayers who are designated by the circuit court judge.

Members of council will serve for a term of four years. The councilmen elect a mayor from their own members who has no power of veto but has a vote as a member of council only

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

150 Expected at Public Installation and Banquet Tonight in Y. P. Building

One hundred and fifty members of Old Dominion Commandery No. 11, Knights Templar, tonight are expected to attend the public installation of officers of that organization and banquet to follow. The installation will take place in the Sunday School room of the M. E. Church South and the banquet in the Young People's Building. The new officers will be installed by Chester A. Gwinn, deputy grand commander.

At the banquet Commander Robert A. Zachary will preside. The principal address of the eveping will be delivered by Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester of this city. Others who will respond to toasts are Chester A. Gwinn, deputy grand commander, whose toast is "The Grand Commander;" Charles H. Callahan, "The Grand Lodge." Musical program will be furnished under the direction of Kenneth W. Ogden and a quartet composed of Mrs. Harrie White, Mrs. T. A. Hulfish, M. L. Dinwiddie and K. W. Ogden will give selections.

Members will meet in the M. E. Church South Sunday School room instead of in the Masonic Temple.

SEA VOYAGE PLANNED

Everybody in Alexandrla and surrounding county is invited to take a to Bermuda Bay on next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. The S. S. Florida has been chartered to make the cruise and will be docked at the local Opera House next week. There will be three sailings and according to present indications you had better secure your passage early for it looks as if all chairs will be taken for each of the trips and you know how unpleasent it is to stand, especially when the boat rocks, and the Florida will rock with laughter. Be ready for Capt. Kidds call "Ship Ahoy."

Tunes that you simply cannot forget, catchy swinging airs that you want to whistle, feature the music in "Ship Ahoy", the show which is to be produced by a local talent sponsored by the Old Dominion Boat Club.

The music is all special, being written only for use of this production. Among the most popular Numbers "Antidotes," sung by Evelyn Howard and the chorus; "Bashful Bumble-Bee" sung by May Nalls; "Sweetheart in Every Port", sung by Allen Roberts; and "At Last My Dream Has Come True"", by Edward Oliver. Other catchy numbers are "What Will Your Answer Be," led by Evelyn Howard and chorus; and "Overalls" by A. J. Rhodes.

The scenery and costumes furnished by John. B. Rogers Producing Co. under which concern the play is being staged, are declared to be far more elaborate and artistic than those carried by the mojority of Professional companies.

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGE IN ARBUCKLE CASE

Police Judge in San Francisco Reduces Charge to That for Lesser Crime

STATE ASKS RELEASE

Women Crowd Forward to Shake Hand of Movie Star When Decision is Announced

San Francisco, Sept. 28.—The murder complaint against Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle was reduced to manslaughter yesterday by Police Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus, who held him to answer to the Superior Court for trial on the lesser charge growing out of the death of Miss Virginia Rappe following a drinking party in Arbuckle's hotel suite here.

Arbuckle was released from city prison last night on $5,000 cash bail and today will return to Los Angeles with his wife and her mother.

Judge Lazarus held that the evidence introduced by the District Attorney during the six-day hearing did not warrant the comedian's being held for murder. Miss Rappe, a Los Angeles motion-picture actress, died September 9, four days after the affair in Arbuckle's rooms.

"I have decided to make a holding for manslaughter, finding there is enough in the defendant's conduct to warrant his trial on that charge," said Judge Lazarus.

"I feel no criminal assault or attempted assault was committed by the defendant on Miss Rappe," he said. "I also feel bound by the grand jury, whose indictment for manslaughter was voted after having more evidence than I was permitted to hear."

Arbuckle heard the decision without movement or comment.

As court adjourned a dozen women rushed forward to shake Arbuckle's hand. As he went into the Judge's chamber his wife, Mrs. Minta Durfee Arbuckle, collapsed, and he held her up and quieted her in an effectionate manner. Her mother, Mrs. Flora Durfee, meanwhile smoothered the hair back from the comedian's forehead.

The well-known Arbuckle smile did not appear, however, and he merely said "thank you" in response to the handshakes and greetings of "Congratulations, Roscoe," from various people.

Assistant District Attorney Milton T. U'Ren and Isadore Golden asked Judge Lazarus if he placed no credence of Miss Rappe's cries "he hurt me" or the screams heard by the hotel maid, but the Court said they "were not sufficient to implicate Arbuckle in the commission of a crime," The District Attorney's aids also contended that the court could only either hold the defendant to answer for murder or dismiss the case altogether, but Judge Lazarus said that was not his understanding of the law.

WIFE OF SICK VETERAN OFFERS TO SELL HERSELF

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 28.—Mrs. Madeline Taylor, 25 years old, of Success, Ark., in a letter to the Arkansas Gazette here, offers to sell herself into servitude for two years to any one who will place her invalid husband in a hospital and provide funds for an operation.

Her husband, she wrote, is an ex-service man, honorably discharged from the navy after 14 months overseas. He sustained an injury to his spine after returning home and has been helpless sence, she said. Her only conditions are that the party with whom she contracts to give her labor for two years and the nature of the work must be "respectable."

HIGH SCHOOL PAPER

Students Will Publish "The Last Lap" Twice a Month

The High School publication, "The Last Lap," will be on sale for the first time this session about next Wednesday. This paper was started last year on a small scale by Robert Midkiff, Richard Wright, and Charles Houston. The "Last Lap" of this year is an enlargement of the last year's paper and has on its staff a number of competent students as well as faculty supervision. It will be a four page paper which will be published semi-monthly and will contain all school news of note as well as editorials on the more important features of High School activities and announcements of some of the city's leading merchants. The staff consists of Eugene Jackson, editor; Miss Nancy Wattles, associate editor; Robert Midkiff, sports writer; Richard Wright, business manager, and Bennett Moore, advertising manager. The work of these students will be under the faculty supervision of Mrs. E. P. Jones and R. E. Knight, Jr. Harry W. Wade will do the printing.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

One of the interesting events of the week in Alexandria was the annual Fall Rally of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, South. The society was fortunate in having as its guest of honor on the occasion Mrs. T. E. F. Morton, who, with her husband, Rev. T. E. F. Morton, has been engaged for many years in missionary work in India. Rev. Mr. Morton was born in Madras, Southern India, and is known as a leading Hindustanee scholar. Mrs. Morton, born Emma Garthwait, by which maiden name she was well known in missionary fields, was trained from childhood for missionary work, and was appointed, after graduation at the Hephzibah Bible Training School, as missionary to Poona, Bombay Presidency, India. Within a year she married Mr. Morton, and the devoted couple have spent the best part of their lives in the land of the Vedas, where they have done the work of the Master and preached his Word.

The labors of the foreign missionary have not always been accorded the recognition they merit. Living for the most part in a country hostile to the beliefs and practices of Christian civilization, their daily existence is one of trial and self-abnegation. If there is ever a renunciation of the world and the flesh, it is certainly known to our missionaries in foreign lands. It is a matter of history, too, that their labors, while in a spiritual field, have a practical effect in acquainting the natives with the manners and customs of antipodal countries. The diplomat follows the missionary, and trade and traffic follow the diplomat. The former paves the way for treaties and conventions. These, in turn. lead to social and business intercourse, which tread the paths of Peace, and the world becomes more neighborly. Suspicion is stilled, toleration is cultivated, and thus the aims of civilization are furthered and expanded.

But what stories of self-sacrifice, of constant denial and deprivation, could be told of these noble men and women who devote their whole lives to the spreading of the highest of all Gospels. "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war." And we say unhesitatingly that peace hath no victories more glorious than those of the missionary who carries the Christian Bible in one hand and the olive branch in the other. Who conquers by love and good works!

It may seem a strange suggestion, but we believe that if the approaching Disarmament Conference were to summon, say, a hundred missionaries from every quarter of the globe, and listen to them, its labors would be lightened and its way made plainer.

In the meantime let us be glad that we have had among us, to tell us of her experiences in far off India, one of this worthy brotherhood and sisterhood of torch bearers. May the light she has spread among us be abiding and not without illumination for the future!

Senator Trinkle's Speech

Mr. Anderson is doubtless old enough to remember the last Republican regime in Virginia. He does not mention it, however. And yet it afforded a fair test of Republican capacity to provide a satisfactory administration of Virginia's affairs when Mahone had blossomed out into a Republican regular, and his black and white followers controlled the General Assembly of 1881-'82, so iniquitous was the legislation then enacted and proposed, that at the next election a political revolution was witnessed and the affairs of the State restored to the control of the Democratic Party. Among the bills then offered, endorsed by Mahone, and whose passage was only narrowly escaped by the revolt of the "Big Four" in the State Senate, was the infamous Commissioner of Sales Bill which proposed to take from the court of each town and city the right to appoint its own commissioners to sell property decreed by the State to be sold; and the Judiciary Bill designed to turn out the Circuit Court judges and substitute partisan leaders in their stead. Had the two measures been enacted they would have contributed to swell the number of office-holders to 42,660 at annual expense of 18,300,000.

As said one fully acquainted with conditions:

"What a contrast do these long years of purity in administration present to the few years of Republican rule in this State. During these few years we saw public officials shamelessly abusing their power and using their offices for self-enrichment. We saw contracts legally entered into cancelled and awarded to others at greater expense to the State, in order to pay for political campaign contributions. We saw the State sustaining heavy losses of public money by deposits made in insolvent banks, which were extending pecuniary favors to those in power. We saw all the public institutions of the State run either for the pecuniary benefit or political advancement of those in control. We witnessed the attempt at infamous legislation, which was only defeated by the rebellion of four State Senators, which, if enacted, would have created in this State innumerable officers, not to be elected by the people but controlled by those in power, and which would have practically put the entire transportation and business interests under the will and caprices of political partisans and plunderers. We saw an effort made, which was only defeated in a similar manner to vacate the circuit judges of this State and put the entire judiciary under partisan and political control. We witnessed offices held and administered by inefficient and impertinent negroes. We were even cursed with negro school officials. We saw the finances of the State demoralized and disorganized for political purposes."

As I have said, Mr. Anderson does not refer to that chapter of Republican history in Virginia. If he is ashamed of it, I can honor him more for his shame, even though I attack him for failure to meet the legitimate demands of frank discussion of party policies and party records. Doubtless he is also ashamed of the fact that he is the political comrade of Henry Cabot Lodge, the present leader of the Republican party in the United States Senate, the author of the infamous Force Bill, intended to Republicanize Virginia and the South under the coercion of Federal bayonets at the polls, and now recognized leader of the Republican forces in the upper branch of the Congress. It may further be that he is ashamed of the role played by his party, when through its members in the United States Senate, it repudiated that great instrument of world peace known as League of Nations—a peace federation for which the American armies fought, and American soldiers fell, and out of which they have been cheated by the brutal malignancy of Republican hate for Woodrow Wilson, the largest, most commanding figure in modern world statesmanship. I take it also from his silence upon the subject that he is ashamed of the fact, that though the Republicans controlled both branches of the last Congress, and control both branches of the present Congress, and though a Republican administration has ruled in Washington since the Fourth of last March, no relief has been afforded the American people from the intolerable burdens represented by exorbitant war taxes and by a reduction in labor pay rolls, according to official federal reports, of almost a million workers. It may be that Mr. Anderson is ashamed of the record of the present Congress which reveals the House as passing a new tariff bill and Senate as promptly chloroforming it with the promise of waking it again perhaps sometime in 1922. It may be that he is ashamed of the humiliating spectacle representing America deserting her allies after the World War and making a separate peace with Germany, as result of Republican control of the federal government. It may be that Mr. Anderson is ashamed of the fact that the Republican party, when in control of the federal government, does not permit the South to be represented in the cabinet, while the only two Democratic Presidents who have occupied the White House since the Civil War, never failed to give the South abundant representation in their cabinets; that the Republican party in the dispensation of high diplomatic posts apparently regards the South as forbidden soil from which to choose while when the Democratic party was in power, Southern men in large numbers were chosen to represent the United States in ambassadorial and important diplomatic positions. If Colonel Anderson is not ashamed of these things, he ought to be; and if he is, then his omission to mention the Republican record in his key-note speech deserves quite as much the tribute of pity as of rebuke. In this connection, be it remembered, my fellow-citizens, that Virginia Republicanism is but a unit of national Republicanism; and should it prevail in Virginia next November, the fact will be hailed as evidencing a strong reinforcement to the national Republican cause, and there isn't a south-hating Republican north of the Potomac who would not hail the announcement in spirit of rankly partisan exultation. But, hear me, my fellow-Virginians, instead, all present indications go to convince that at the polls in the approaching election will be registered the largest Democratic majority ever recorded in the history of the Commonwealth.

And so between Mr. Anderson's attitude and mine in this campaign obtains a distinction that is luminous and impressive in significance. I plant my feet upon the record of the Democratic party, state and national. Colonel Anderson does not plant his feet upon the record of the Republican party, State or national. I advance the record of the Democratic party, State and national, as reason for my election. Mr. Anderson does not advance the record of the Republican party, State or national, as a reason for his election. He evidently deems it sufficient to cite several planks in the Norfolk platform and boldly proclaim that they are a panacea for what he conceives to be the ills in Virginia's government affairs. But if thinking he will succeed in his purpose by the employment of such infirm pretense he sadly under-rates the intelligence of the Virginia electorate.

The administration of the State's affairs since the Democratic party came in control speaks for itself. It speaks in terms of tremendous moral and material values, and all efforts to minimize this great wealth of service, to falsify its purposes, to misstate facts in connection with the Democratic record, and thus attempt to bring about a confused state of the public mind, I shall relentlessly resist throughout the campaign, and expose them for the shallow sham and mockery which I know them to be.

Mr. Anderson, in his bill of complaint, files several charges against the Virginia Democracy, some of which perhaps it will be interesting to dignify with attention. I observe, among other things, that he is overcome with anguish in contemplating what he terms a Democratic machine in Virginia. He even indicates that my nomination was the product of machine dictation. Of course, no intelligent Virginian will give serious heed to any such unutterably "loose talk." I was nominated in a primary in which 150,000 Democratic men and women went to the polls and freely registered their choice, and recorded a majority of 22,000 in my favor. Surely, that's a rather a gigantic machine comprising 150,000 free, independent, uncontrolled delegates, each representing himself or herself in a private booth where they were permitted to vote their choice without interruption or word of persuasion from any source whatever: Nay more. Of these supporting me and among the most conspicuous leaders in my cause where men who never affiliated with what used to be called the "organization" or "machine" faction of the party, while my competitor enjoyed the support of many of the leaders of what used to be called the organization. I say "used to be," because old factional lines in the Democratic party have grown so dim as to become almost a memory. They appear big to Mr. Anderson, however, the thought perhaps being fathered the wish. Its doors were open to all Democrats, and as a result the standards of the party were placed in my hands. In the circumstances, then, the charge that boss methods or political tyranny is responsible for my nomination is chiefly notable for being monstrously absurd. And it takes on semblance of even larger folly when the source from which it proceeds is considered. Did the Republican voters of Virginia nominate Mr. Anderson? No. Were the Republican voters of Virginia given an opportunity to say whether they desired Mr. Anderson, or some one else to lead them? Certainly not. Upon the contrary a convention of about a thousand delegates became nominally responsible for Mr. Anderson's nomination, while the ultimate authority lodged with a few Republican leaders sitting behind closed doors who arranged the slate of candidates, had it presented to the convention with the mandate that the convention approve which the convention promptly did. Therefore, again I say that if the true facts could be ascertained, they could doubtless reveal that first, last and essentially, Mr. Anderson is a brazenly boss-picked product of the purest ray serene.

HAD TWO WIVES; ARRAIGNED FOR BIGAMY

"Yes I got two wives," said a colored man when arraigned today before Justice Snow in the police court to answer a charge of bigamy. According to the prisoner he took on wife number one last year and added wife number two this year. The accused, however, denied he had any third wife. Wife number two made the complaint and according to the man who gave the name of Philip Medley, wife one left so he simply got another. He was released.

AN AID TO THE SCHOOLS

In commenting on the work of the Junior Red Cross, an organization of school children rapidly spreading throughout the world, The Bulletin of League of Red Cross Societies says "The response of youth to the ideal of unselfish service has been so egar that a profound change has been affected in the thousands of classrooms and the teachers have come to look upon the Junior Red Cross as a practical means of teaching the lessons of personal health, of good citizenship and of unselfishness."

PUBLIC SHOOTING GROUNDS IN LOUISIANA IN LINE WITH POLICY OF FEDERAL BUREAU

Of the more than six millions hunters of the United States, many will be benefited by the recent action of authorities in Louisiana in setting aside the Pass-a-l'Outre Public Shooting Grounds, a tract of 60,000 acres at mouth of the Mississippi River. Here the sportsman of moderate means can enjoy all the opportunities for wild fowl shooting enjoyed by wealthy members of the exclusive clubs in that region. Action taken is in direct accord with recommendations made by the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture. Louisiana is one of the first States to adopt the broad policy of protecting its citizens against monopolization of the desirable hunting grounds by exclusive clubs.

In the Pass-a-l'Outre reservation there is one lagoon which it is proposed to set aside as a sanctuary where all wild fowl will find refuge from the gun of the hunter. The shooting grounds are dotted with duck ponds and make one of the finest duck hunting rsrves in the U. S. It is located on practically newly created ground, built up in the last few years by the Mississippi with the sediment constantly carried down and deposited where the river pours into the Gulf of Mexico. Were it for sale the property could hardly be bought for much short of half a million dollars.

Day's Bag is 25 Ducks.

The season for hunting wild fowl on the new shooting grounds will extend from November 1 to January 31 and the law permits each hunter to shoot 25 ducks each day. To prevent overcrowding, hunters will be required to register, and accomodations wil be provided for an average of 140 hunters, more than it is probable wil be there on any one day.

"An extension of such public-spirited and progressive conservation meausres by other States,' said Dr. T. W. Nelson, chief of the Biological Survey, in commenting on the action of Louisiana, "Will result in retention of water areas in various parts of the country where our migratory wild fowl may have feeding grounds and places to breed, and where the public can continue to exercise the splendid health-giving sport of wild-fowl hunting during the open season. The New-Anthony bill recently introduced in Congress will, if it becomes a law, enable the Federal Government to join the States in establishing a great series of breeding places for wild fowl and public shooting grounds throughout the country, thus insuring the perpetutation of wild-fowl hunting.

"Acording to its terms, the New-Anthony bill proposes to accomplish two main objects: First, the purchase, or rental, and maintenance of marsh and water areas especially suitable for migratory wild fowl, which shall be used as free public shooting grounds in the open hunting season and safeguarded as breeding and resting places for these birds in the close season; and second, the administration of the migratory bird treaty act in order more adequately to maintain and increase the supply of migratory birds, including not only the ducks, geese and other classes of game, but the host of smaller species which are so vitally essential to the agricultural interests of the country through their unceasswar on injurious insects.

"The passage of the migratory bird treaty act constitutes the first important step toward insuring the perpetuation of our wild fowl and our wild-fowl hunting. The season step is of almost equally vital importance if we are to hold what we have gained This is the conservation and perpetuation of a sufficient number of small inland lakes, as well as islands and coastal swamp and marsh areas, to provide our migratory wild fowl necessary feeding ,resting, and breeding places within the United States. Under proper conditions many lakes, ponds, swamps and marsh areas will yield a distinctly larger return than would the same areas drained for agricultural purposes.

More Than 6,000,000 Hunters

"At the present time it is estimated that more than 6,000,000 people in the United States engage in hunting of one kind of another each year. The rapidly increasing drainage of marsh areas threatens the continuance of one of most popular kinds of hunting, which will be perpetuated under the terms of the New-Anthony bill. With the growing congestion of population and the unrest which such masing products, the need for maintaining and developing opportunities for out-of-door recreation places this bill in the front rank among legislative measurers bearing on the public welfare. Throughout the United States a very large proportion of the men who spend a certain period each year in hunting are undoubtedly among the most desirable citizens. Through their out-of-door- recreations they develope their resourcefulness and maintain a physical and mental health which is of the utmost value in relation to their civic usefulness.

"Under present conditions many of the most favorable marsh areas for wild-fowl shooting have ben purchased and are being held by wealthy sportsmen as hunting clubs, thus curtailing opportunities for wild-fowl hunting by the general public. The growing absorption of such areas by hunting clubs has created much criticism on the part of those who, through lack of means, are unable to enjoy such privileges. The establishment of public hunting grounds such as have just been made by Louisiana, will give the general public equally good shooting privileges with those had by the clubs, and should completely obviate any cause for the antagonistic feeling now existing on the part of the public.'

YORK COUNTY JAIL

The north side of the Jail in this town fell down last night to the foundation, together with some part of the wall fronting George Street. A cellar dug contiguous to the wall, was the cause of its falling in. Mr. Wilson, jailer, observed some time in the evening that the wall was cracking and giving way, and through timely exertion once more rescued the unfortunate Elizabeth Eaton who had been twice already respited from the gallows, from immediate death. She was chained to the wall that broke down.

Wedding Last Night

St. John's Episcopal Church, West End, was the scene of a very pretty wedding last night, when Miss Nettie H. Chauncey, second daughter of Mrs. J. F. Chauncey, was united in marriage to Mr. Henry Wyatt Easterwood, a recent graduate of the University of Virginia, and whose home is in San Antonio, Texas.

Miss Chauncey was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Joseph E. Chauncey.

She was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Walter Cockrell, as matron of honor, and Miss Ruth Chauncey who was maid of honor. Mr. Walter Cockrell, brother-in-law of the bride, was attendede by her sisters, Julian F. Chauncey, brother of the bride and Mr. Reginald Hall, a student at the Episcopal Theological Seminary. The bride was preceded by her little four year old niece, Miss Margaret Virginia Cockrell, who was the flower girl. She carried a basket of yellow and white Snapdragons. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Cleon Cowling, rector of St. Margaret's Church, near Annapolis, Maryland, an uncle of the bride. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. R. C. Cowling. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants, the color scheme being yellow and white, golden rod taking a prominent part.

The bride was beautifully attired in white georgette over white silk, wearing a white picture hat and carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

Mrs. Julian F. Chauncey, the bride's mother, entered the church on the arm of her youngest son, Edward C. Chauncey. She was attired in black stripe Marquisette, wearing a tan velvet hat with ostrich trimming and a corsage bouquet of purple and white asters.

Miss Eva E. Cowling, an aunt of the bride, was gowned in black canton crepe, wearing a black hat with ostrich plumes.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home where a wedding supper was served to the bridal party, members of the family and a few intimate friends of the family.

The house was beautifully decorated, the color scheme being yellow and white.

Immediately after the reception, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Canada, and other points. On their return they will make their home in Alexandria.

GETTING RESULTS

In all of the foreign countries where the Junior American Red Cross is seeking to make some permanent contribution to the happiness and well being of the children, it is working along educational lines. That this assistance which the organization of the girls and boys of America is rendering to the schools overseas is bearing fruit is evidenced by reports constantly reaching National Headquarters of the American Red Cross at Washington.

These reports show that the pupils of the Danilovgrad grammar school of Montenegro which is being aided by the Junior American Red Cross, have won the highest marks of any students in the Montenegrin school system. The work of those pupils shows the effect of proper food, sanitation and the after school influences which the Juniors have given them.

Another instance is the case of a student graduated from the Junior American Red Cross Industrial School at Danilovgrad to the Government's Trade School. This young man has been picked out by the Trade School professors as being one of the most brilliant pupils they have encountered. He has made such a splendid record that he has called attention to himself from the leaders in education throughout Montenegro, and the Government is arranging it so that he will not have to take up a trade as was anticipated, but will go right into the University of Belgrade for special training.

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

Caused by Woman's Ills and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Grafton, Pa.—"I was troubled with inflammation and pains in my sides and back. After doctoring with different doctors and not getting relief, I had almost given up hopes when my sister told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and knowing that she had really been helped by it, I purchased it. I was unable to do my work at that time, but after taking several bottles of the Vegetable Compound I can now do anything about the house or farm that a woman should do. I have a four months old baby that is the healthiest and biggest baby for his age that I have ever seen. I am willing for my letter to be used for a testimonial to tell other suffering women how much your medicine has done for me, as I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all the praise."—Mrs. BLAIR L. FISHER, R. D. 1, Box 37, Grafton, Pa.

Working early and late—lifting, carrying, and the heaviest of houshold duties—is it any wonder that it results in backaches and kindred ills. But every woman who suffers as Mrs. Fisher did should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

THOMAS L. CARTER, Auctioneer
AUCTION SALE OF STEAMER MAJESTIC

Pursuant to a decree rendered by the Corporation Court of the City of Alexandria, Virginia, on the 23rd day of September, 1921, in the chancery cause therein depending, wherein Howard S. Reeside, et als., are Plaintiffs, and the Colonial Beach Company is Defendant, the undersigned Receivers for the Colonial Beach Company will offer for sale at public auction, at Roberts' Dock, between King and Prince Streets, in the City of Alexandria, Virginia on at 11 o'clock A. M., the steamer "Majestic", belonging to the Colonial Beach Company.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1921,

This steamer is built of steel and was constructed in 1903 at Elizabethport, New Jersey. She was not completed until May 1908, and within the past two years has been thoroughly over-hauled at a cost of approximately thirty-five thousand dollars. The engines and boilers were built by W. and A. Fletcher Company.

This steamer has three decks, electric light, search light, running water, all first-class equipment for freight and passenger business, has forty-two state rooms and a dining room.

Her length is two hundred feet, her breadth fifty-four feet over all; her draft six feet one inch light; she is equipped with feathering wheels, and the W. and A. Fletcher beam surface condensing engine, about seven hundred and fifty horse power; Lese boiler fifty-two pounds steam pressure (original); her coal bunkers will hold about sixty tons of coal; she has a large freight deck, and will carry about three hundred tons dead weight; her speed is fourteen miles per hour.

Terms of sale: CASH. A deposit of $2,500 will be required on the day of sale and the balance of the purchase money must be paid within five days thereafter.

What Happened in Des Moines No. 1

On August 4, 1921, Des Moines, Iowa, a city of 125,000 persons, lost its street car service.

Unrestricted bus competition compelled the Company, already in receivership and unable to earn running expenses, to run its cars into the barns.

City officials and business men, who had been assured that buses would supply a "quicker, cheaper and better" transportation service than street cars, made no immediate attempt to obtain a square deal for the Company.

In a series of advertisements we are going to tell the story of what subsequently happened.

All of the ads will be based on indisputable facts.

When you have read them you will know the truth of the Des Moines situation. Then you will not have to depend on rumor, or hearsay testimony.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Mrs. T. E. Morton, Returned Missionary, Recipient of Flowers

The Woman's Missionary Society of M. E. Church South, was well attended yesterday afternoon at their usual monthly meeting.

After the regular business session a very enjoyable social hour took place with our guest, Mrs. T. E. Morton, who favored us with a delightful solo and told us of her many experiences in India.

A very attractive basket of flowers was presented to Mrs. Morton and concealed among the blossoms was a token of love so generously given by those who attended the Fall Rally on Tuesday evening.

Delicious sandwiches with a cup of tea were attractively served by the Social Service Committee and this completed two perfect occasions which will long be remembered by those who were present.

AWARD PRIZES

Winners Named in Contest of Lighting Company in "How Much Dirt Contest"

Last night at 8 p. m., the Alexandria County Lighting Company removed all the dirt from the rug which was stretched across their sidewalk from Monday 8 a. m. until last evening and found it to contain 3 ounzes Unfortunately for some of the guessers the elements soaked the rug with water and this caused considerably less dirt to collect than was expected. There were seven guessers ranging from 2 ounces to 3 ounces and the electric company decided rather than rule some out whose guess was so close that they would offer all seven the wonderful offer of 25 per cent cash discount on a Liberty Cleaner. The winners are:

WHERE REAL THRIFT IS PRACTICED

Suppose you American school girls and boys who are forming thrift clubs and studying thrift as a part of your school work had to treasure your pennies until the spending of them became a real art. That is what is being done by the children of Europe. More than that, there are many children in schools and institutions in Europe which are being aided by the Junior American Red Cross who have never had so much as a penny to spend in all their lives. One of these schools where amazing frugality prevails is located in Vicenza, Italy.

In this school, the Casa Materna (Mother House), nothing, absolutely nothing, is wasted. Shoes are very expensive, therefore the children go barefoot. The teachers make their own shoes. All the clothes worn by the children—and they are immaculate always—teh boys in blue, the girls in pink, are made by the girls themselves under the guidance of their teachers. Youngsters, seven and eight years old, knit socks to eb sold. Later, they cut out and make their own little dresses and there are three machines, run by the children, for making knitted sweatres, gloves, stockings, etc., for local manufacturers. Laundry is another expense; therefore, the children wash their own clothes in the well equipped school laundry.

For fresh vegetables there is a garden in the school where the youngsters grow big tomatoes, string beans, potatoes and grapes. The boys are kept busy in the garden, the girls in the sewing room and they not only save many lire but learn a trade for all their lives. The older children help in the kitchen, washing vegetables, drying dishes, going to the well for water, and feeding the chickens. There are 10 beehives and the delicious honey is sold in Vicenza.

When one estimates that eight teachers look after 67 children, ranging from two years of age to thirteen, that they wash them, clothe them, give the mthree meals a day, teach them, play with them, give them lessons in sewing and gardening and keep the schoolhouse in good order—all without the aid of any servants—and that the cost of each child's maintenance is two lire a day, one can realize how economical and frugal they are.

Each child has one toy, a skipping rope, a top or a ball, and all the year long he plays with this and cherishes it. He has never had one centessimi to spend and he is perfectly happy. He is glad to have the meagre necessities of life and the luxuries never enter into his scheme of things.

IT HAPPENED AT SPRING MEADOW

When the last lingerer had departed, Miss Carter gave a tired little sigh, and, putting aside the big book in which she had been recording the grades of her pupils, went out into the hall. Taking up the broom, she began her evening task. The hall was very long and the schoolroom was very large, and little Miss Carter was very tired when at last she put down the broom and locked the door. She would have to resign, and again she sighed.

Miss Carter had taken charge of the Spring Meadow school at the insistence of the County Superintendent when it was learned that the teacher who had been engaged was too ill to undertake the work. Although it meant the sacrifice of a year at the State University, she loved the children and was determined that the school should not be closed. But when she discovered that she must be janitor as well as teacher, she was tempted to resign. Only her love for the boys and girls of Spring Meadow School caused her to continue at her task.

The pupils' committee of the Junior American Red Cross was debating at a meeting, what should be their next bit of unselfish service when Ned Jenkins took the floor.

"Fellow Juniors," he began, "we have been so busy with our work of service outside of school that we have overlooked what seems to me to be a real Junior job right here under our very eyes. I suppose you all know Miss Carter is doing the janitor work. Well, we ought to be ashamed of ourselves if we Juniors permit her to do it any longer."

Immediately a clamor arose, everyone seemed to have something to say in support of Ned's suggestion. As soon as order was restored, a committee was named to take charge of the work of cleaning the schoolhouse and another was named to see that the untidy school grounds were made neat and clean.

So efficient were the Junior committees that the schoolhouse and grounds were made neat and clean. tire country. Miss Carter found her work so lightened by the varied assitance received from the Juniors that she was able to plan many pleasures for the pupils and the school became the center of interest in Spring Meadow. The little teacher ceased to sigh and never once thought of resigning.

Distribute the Load and Move the Goods!

"Business cannot move when some of its workers are carrying an undue share of the load," says Senator Smoot of Utah, in proposing a general manufacturers' tax to take the place of special war-time levies on certain industries such as dry goods, motion pictures and automobiles. "Unless the burden is equitable, all suffer."

Do you know what constitutes a strong constitution?

TO have sound, healthy nerves, completely under control, digestive organs that are capable of absorbing a hearty meal, means you have a strong constitution! Your general attitude is one of optimism and energy.

But an irritable disposition, frequent attacks of indigestion, and a languid depression, indicate your system is not in correct working order.

Probably you are not eating the proper food. Probably the nutritious elements are not being supplied to your system in the proper way.

Grape-Nuts is the wholesome, delicious cereal that promotes normal digestion, absorption and elimination, whereby nourishment is accomplished without auto-intoxication. A mixture of energy-giving wheat and malted barley comprise the chief elements of Grape-Nuts. A dish at breakfast or lunch is an excellent, wholesome rule to follow.

You can order Grape-Nuts at any and every hotel, restaurant, and lunch room; on dining cars, on lake boats and steamers; in every good grocery, large and small, in every city, town or village in North America.

A POUND PARTY

"I didn't know it would be so much fun," laughed Tommy as he looked up at the High School boy by whose side he was proudly walking.

"Almost like a Hallowe'en frolic," replied the big boy, who appeared to have been having a pretty good time himself.

These two had just left a group of school girls and boys who had been "pounding" an old couple who lived on the outskirts of the town.

How could pouding an old man and woman be fun? It was not the sort of pounding you have in mind.

The school pupils of the Mooresville Junior American Red Cross had discovered a man and his wife living in great poverty and had decided that each Junior should bring to school a pound of something to eat or something to wear and when all of the "pound" were assembled that they should deliver them to the needy couple.

The High School Jounors were given charge of the work and supervised the collection of the food and clothing in the grade schools. Then came the afternoon when they surprised the old couple with their great pile of gifts. Tommy and the High School boy had been members of the committee that brought happiness into the little cottage.

Tommy said it had been great fun and the High Schoolboy had agreed with him.

KEEPING CHILDREN IN SCHOOL

Last spring when there was a great deal of unimployment, many children whose fathers had lost their positions were compelled to drop out of school because of a lack of clothing. To meet this situation, the pupils of Junior American Red Cross Auxiliary caused to appropiated from the service fund the sum of $325 with which they purchased clothes for the more needy children. This enabled the pupils so helped to remain in school until the beginning of the summer vacation.

Gasoline for Those Who Drive Long Distances

A UNIFORMLY balanced gasoline saves money, annoyance and time when used consistently, whether in automobiles that are frequently starting and stopping or traveling long distances.

This matter of balanced fuel has been so carefully worked out by the refiners of "Standard" Motor Gasoline that a gallon used today will function precisely the same as another gallon purchased yesterday in another part of the state.

Years of study and gradual development of the product were required to standardize and improve this gasoline until it had reached a state of absolute uniformity in content and in efficiency. We have gone even farther than that. We have so charted the sources of the crude oil that we can handle, or balance, the peculiar qualities of crudes from various fields in a way which provides every essential of powerful "Standard" Motor Gasoline in just the quantities needed.

A fair trial of this improved gasoline will quickly demonstrate its superior pulling power and its quick-starting properties. Use it regularly and we believe you will find that it delivers greater mileage and that it helps eliminate some of the more common motor troubles, such as dilution of the crank-case oil, pitted valve seats and overheating.
